

A blue geometric graphic consisting of several overlapping triangles and trapezoids, creating a layered, triangular shape that points to the right. It is located in the upper left quadrant of the slide.

'DUNDEX is a consulting firm (whose) founders have worked for UN agencies at senior levels. It has provided excellent candidates to (UN sister agency) and understands the context of the UN's mandate, operations, regulations and rules. (...) DUNDEX's charges – 5% on top of the agreed remuneration of the consultant – are very competitive when compared with other consulting firms. This is value for our organization in terms of cost effectiveness and compares favorably against other recruitment firms (...) which charge a fee of 10% or more for their services. (...) we are getting highly experienced consultants through DUNDEX below the market value, and (...) the selection of DUNDEX is therefore best value for money and in the best interests of the organization.'

Quoted from a procurement committee submission by a manager at a New York-based UN agency (31 July 2011)